Resources for Health Disparities Students

Hispanic - Serving Health Professions Schools

Graduate Fellowship Training Program
The HSHPS is a national nonprofit organization that provides paid and unpaid training opportunities for graduate and doctoral students and recent graduates interested in working on Hispanic health research. Fellows are placed throughout the United States and Latin America within government agencies and academic institutions. For more information, see http://www.hshps.org/programs.

The Albert Schweitzer Fellowship - Houston Galveston seeks to develop Leaders in Service who are dedicated to improving the health and well-being of underserved communities during their Fellowship year and beyond. Schweitzer Fellows design and implement their own 200-hour community service projects that address local unmet health needs, while also participating in monthly Fellowship activities focused on leadership development. A diverse group of 12 to 15 students are selected each year from multiple schools and academic disciplines, including medicine, biology, education, engineering, law, nursing, optometry, public health, religion, and social work, among others. Applications can be found at https://asfhg.org.

Health Disparities, Education, Awareness, Research and Training HDEART Consortium
The mission of HDEART is to develop and maintain a consortium of academic universities and health-related institution as well as to access and utilize their expertise to address health disparities through collaboration, thereby strengthening each member institution’s capacity to address health disparities academically, socially, and through outstanding collaborative research efforts.
