We need your help to improve the health of your family and community.

To improve the health in our communities, timely information is necessary to identify areas of greatest need.

The University of Texas School of Public Health is conducting a survey on the health of people living in the Greater Houston area. We are interested in your health and the health of your children and factors that affect health, such as going to the doctor and neighborhood issues.

This information will help local groups and leaders bring needed resources to your community, building a better future for residents in the Greater Houston area.

The Health of Houston Survey 2010 may be coming to your mailbox.
