

Occupational Epidemiology

~ TRAINEESHIP ~

Southwest Center for Occupational and Environmental Health

Occupational Epidemiology focuses on applying epidemiologic methods to study work-related exposures, diseases and injuries.

- Offered by: Southwest Center for Occupational & Environmental Health (SWCOEH)
- Funds: CDC National Institute for Occupational Health and Safety (NIOSH) Education and Research Center (ERC) training grant T42OH008421
- Eligibility: SWCOEH ERC offers competitive traineeships to U.S. citizens or permanent residents UTHealth School of Public Health PhD in Epidemiology students from Houston, El Paso & San Antonio campuses

Benefits of Traineeship:

- Participate in SWCOEH sponsored activities
- Mentoring by an expert academic advisor
- Annual $24,324 full-time stipend
- Health insurance
- Tuition/fees for the Occupational Epidemiology Curriculum (epidemiology major, occupational health breadth, biostatistics minor)
- $1,600 annual travel funds for meetings
- Additional half-time graduate student employment permitted with approval from the Program Director
- Cubicle space & desktop computer

APPLICATIONS OPEN!

Deadline

August 6st, 2018

Application Materials:

- Current CV
- Statement of research interest (2 pages)
- Transcript

Submit to Program

Director:

David.Gimeno@uth.tmc.edu

Competitive merit-based trainee award

More info at:

www.swcoeh.org