

Southwest Center for Occupational and Environmental Health (SWCOEH)

A NIOSH-funded ERC since 1977

Occupational Epidemiology TRAINEESHIPS

Interested in applying epidemiologic methods to studying work-related exposures, diseases and injuries?

Funded by the CDC National Institute for Occupational Health and Safety, the SWCOEH Education and Research Center (ERC) offers competitive traineeships to U.S. citizens or permanent residents UTHealth School of Public Health PhD in Epidemiology students.

Benefits of the OE traineeships:

- Participate in SWCOEH sponsored activities (e.g., seminars, symposiums, journal clubs, field trips and other interdisciplinary activities with students in other SWCOEH traineeship programs)
- Mentoring by an expert academic advisor affiliated with the Occupational Epidemiology Program
- Annual $23,844 full-time stipend
- Health insurance
- Tuition/fees for the Occupational Epidemiology Curriculum (epidemiology major, occupational health breadth, biostatistics minor)
- $2,400 annual travel funds available to national meetings and SWCOEH activities
- Additional half-time graduate student employment is permitted
- Cubicle space & desktop computer
- Manuscript format of the dissertation

Applications

Application is open!

Application materials

- Current CV
- Statement of research interests
- Transcript

Submit to

David.Gimeno@uth.tmc.edu

Competitive merit-based traineeship award depending upon available funding.

More information is available at www.swcoeh.org